This program will review the most common pediatric health emergencies seen in the school setting and basic physical assessment related to those health emergencies. This course is to help school nurses be aware of important elements to consider during a health emergency and be able to assess and triage ill children in the school setting. We will review basic physical assessment of the school age child in relation to body systems and practice exam skills such as otoscopy, cranial nerve exams, and teen health history taking.

AUDIENCE

School nurses and other interested healthcare providers or other school faculty

OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this educational event, the learner should be able to:

- Identify sign and symptoms, treatment and guidance for the most common pediatric health emergencies
- Describe basic physical assessment for the school age child
- Demonstrate an otoscopic exam, cranial nerve exam and take a teen health history
